The Equine Land Conservation Resource (ELCR) Conservation Partners program is a dues paying membership program. Members voluntarily affiliate with ELCR in support of our mission to conserve land for horse-related activities. Membership does not imply ELCR's endorsement of the member organization, or its actions or those of its members.

About the Conservation Partners Program

The purpose of the Conservation Partners Program is to build a coalition of equine, equestrian and conservation organizations for the purpose of saving land for horses by fostering relationships and communications across breeds, regions and disciplines.

The Program is at the heart of ELCR's grassroots endeavor to educate horse people across the country about the importance of land to our equine heritage, and to assist them in conserving this quickly vanishing resource. Through the Program's conference calls, meetings and other personal networking opportunities, Conservation Partner organizations obtain the resources they need to promote land conservation and stewardship in their respective communities among their members, clients and constituents. One thing is certain regardless of breed or discipline: no land = no horses.
